Facing Mt. Elgon

And Other Short Stories

In the shadow of the Kenyan sun—a place of myth, memory, and formidable challenge—a new generation of Kenyan voices rises.
Facing Mt. Elgon & Other Short Stories is a powerful anthology that plunges you into the tumultuous, vibrant heart of modern Kenya. Within these pages, emerging and established writers brave the frontier of a rapidly changing world, confronting issues that are as intimately personal as they are globally resonant.

From the quiet ache of cultural adjustment in a city that never sleeps to the seismic shockwaves of modernity hitting rural life, these stories illuminate the battles fought every day: the struggle against alienation, the complexity of family issues, the enduring power of love, and the critical fight against traditions like FGM.

This collection is more than just a book; it's a mirror reflecting the universal human experience through a distinctly African lens. Whether you've walked these streets or are seeing them for the first time, these narratives will challenge, inspire, and connect you to the soul of a people determined to find their place between yesterday and tomorrow.

Discover the stories that are connecting the world, one Kenyan voice at a time.
